People Are Real Magic Ingredient

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the final article on drugs prepared by Rick Barnes of the Pickaway Mental Health Clinic for The Herald. On July 30, a number of essay questions to which boys and girls from the ages of 10 to 16 can respond will be printed. Winners will be chosen from each age group and will be taken to an expenses paid trip to a Cincinnati Reds baseball game.

Pickaway Mental Health Clinic

In the last five articles we have been discussing drugs and how they affect people. In this, the last article, I want to talk about the most important effect of all — how people affect drugs.

Depending on what country you happen to be in and when you happen to be there, you would find different beliefs, positive and negative, about different drugs. These are called social or cultural attitudes, and they have a very strong effect on how drugs are used and mis-used inside that society.

As an example, if you were in Germany in the 1600s you would find that smoking tobacco was a capital offense. It was considered extremely addicting and was believed to be the cause of various crimes, among them, theft, prostitution, and murder. There was a huge illegal market for tobacco, and even those who used it considered it to be a dangerously addicting drug from which there was little hope for escape.

In American society in 1977 the attitude towards tobacco is not quite the same. While most of us realize that tobacco can do physical health damage we are not, by and large, afraid of it. We do not consider it a mysterious and uncontrollable drug and therefore do not have the kinds of trouble with it that Germany had in the 1600s.

There are however, drugs that we Americans fear, and it is our fear of these drugs that not only stands in the way of our understanding them, but also creates an atmosphere of mystery and intrigue that many a curious mind finds it impossible to resist. This is an example of how cultural attitudes help determine how a drug is used or misused.

Two of the questions most often asked of me about the illegal drugs are, "Why do kids try these drugs in the first place?" and "What do the kids get out of them?"

The reason the second question was asked happens to be the answer to the first — curiosity.

People try drugs because they are curious of what they are like. Some people might claim that they tried them because of pressure from friends, but this is often used as an excuse to satisfy one's curiosity.

I happen to believe that curiosity is a very healthy human trait. It is perhaps what makes us people instead of chairs. It is not the curiosity about drugs that is dangerous, it is our almost religious belief in drugs that is dangerous. The belief that drugs are more powerful than we are. That a drug can better deal with a problem or pain than we can. Indeed, the fact that we are so afraid of certain drugs is a testimonial to our belief in them.

This is perhaps the myth underlying all other myths about drugs. That is, the myth that drugs have mystical powers over us. That is the reason we take Valium for anxiety, Aspirin for headaches, Amphetamines to lose weight, Caffeine to wake up, Alcohol to relax, Barbiturates to go to sleep, and Marijuana to enjoy ourselves. It is also the basis of our irrational fear of such drugs as L.S.D. and Heroin.

The truth is that drugs do not have powers over us. Drugs have effects. How we interpret those effects determines how we will use or mis-use that drug.

In almost every article it has been said that different drugs affect different people in different ways, and that even a particular drug may affect the same person differently on different occasions. The reasons this is so is because there are six different factors that determine how we interpret the effects of a given drug.

They are:

1. The chemical action of the drug itself. Is it a stimulant, depressant, antibiotic, etc? What was the drug designed to do in our bodies?
2. The dose. How much of the drug did we put into our bodies? Since everyone's bio-chemistry is different, small dose, large dose, and over-dose is different for everyone.
3. Set. The set is what you expect the drug to do. How you expect it to make you feel. This is very important in understanding how people become dependent on drugs.
4. Setting. The setting is the environment around you. A good example of how the setting affects the effects of a drug is the difference between how a person might behave

Desegregation Case Returns To Court

CLEVELAND (AP) — An appeals court order returning the Cleveland desegregation case to U.S. District Court for further review was hailed by school officials as a victory since it might result in a new plan for classroom integration.

School Board President Arnold R. Pinkney said Friday's order by the U.S. 6th Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati would have no effect on the first phase of desegregation, already in progress under U.S. District Court Judge Frank J. Battisti's orders.

The initial phase involves only faculty and administrative staff of more than 100 city schools. Pinkney said reassignments under the phase will be carried out in time for the opening of schools in September.

But Pinkney said the appeals court probably will mean modification of the judge's order for classroom integration, which is scheduled to start in 1978. He did not elaborate on the prediction.

The board's lawyer, Charles F. Clarke, called the appeals court ruling "a significant victory" for the schools and said it supported his contention that evidence in last year's trial failed to show segregative intent on the part of the board.

However, NAACP lawyer James L. Hardiman said he thinks the ruling will have no effect on the desegregation plan now being finalized.

Hardiman said the case was being remanded to the trial court "solely for the purpose of affording the court the opportunity of showing system-wide impact" in the desegregation case.

He noted that the appeals court said it was sending the case back to Battisti in light of a recent U.S. Supreme Court ruling in the Dayton school case. The Dayton case was sent back to the trial judge, he said, on grounds that "the record...did not justify the order the judges wrote....If there is to be a system-wide remedy, the court must show system-wide impact."

In the Cleveland case, he said, Battisti will have no trouble showing system-wide impact.

Another NAACP lawyer, Thomas I. Atkins, said there was no comparison between the Cleveland and Dayton cases. "Hold the two up side-by-side," he said, "and it looks like a volume of Shakespeare next to a comic book."

Clarke said, however, the appeals court "held that the findings of fact and conclusions of law of Judge Battisti were not sufficient to support his ruling."

Man Held In Slayings

By JAMES F. SMITH
Associated Press Writer

PROSPECT, Conn. (AP) — A 27-year-old Waterbury man was charged today with killing his foster brother's wife, seven children and a cousin whose bodies were found in their burned home in this central Connecticut community.

Lorne J. Acquin was held on $250,000 bond at the state jail in New Haven pending arraignment on nine counts of murder, authorities said.

Acquin was charged with the death of Cheryl Beaudoin, her seven children, who ranged in age from 4 to 12, and a 6-year-old cousin, who was staying overnight at their home.

Acquin had lived with the Frederick Beaudoin family off and on for several years in the basement of their home and was a childhood companion of Beaudoin, having been raised by his father.

Resident State Trooper William McCasland said that Acquin had a record of robbery and burglary arrests.

The bodies were found inside the house following the early Friday morning blaze.

Authorities said the fire apparently had been set and some of the children had been bound, gagged and beaten. Officials called it the "worst mass homicide" in Connecticut's history.

"We have nine people here who were murdered and burned," said State Police Commissioner Edward P. Leonard.

Beaudoin, who told police he had been at work about 10 miles away in a North Haven factory on the midnight-to-7 a.m. shift who had one thing to live for — "to see the bastard pay."

Puffy-eyed and unshaven, Beaudoin, 29, dabbed the tears from his eyes as he sat with his parents Friday night, trying to comprehend the day's events. He wasn't at his charred house when his family's bodies were carried out in plastic bags.

A state trooper had taken him from his job back to his parents' house in Prospect, where he talked with a reporter. He said he wasn't told immediately that his wife and children were murdered.

Beaudoin said at one point he had nothing to live for. Then he added, "There's only one thing — to see the bastard pay."

"He's in a state of shock," said his mother, Marion Beaudoin. She said the police told the family little about the investigation.

"We are suspecting arson," said state police spokesman Harry Boardman. "Some firemen found some of the children bound, so we're considering it a murder," Boardman said.

Dr. Elliot Gross, chief state medical examiner, said evidence showed that some of the children had head injuries. He said the official cause of death would not be announced until autopsies were performed today.

Police said there were no indications Mrs. Beaudoin had been shot, as was reported earlier.

"What could they possibly have done to deserve this?" asked neighbor Joseph Paolino as he gazed at the blackened ruins of the modest, six-room, one-story house, where the Beaudoins had lived for nine years. Paolino discovered the fire about 4 a.m. Friday after his wife was awakened by smoke and he went across the street to the Beaudoin home.

"I opened the back door and got driven back by a blast of heat," Paolino said. "Then the picture window blew out."

Firemen from this rural central Connecticut town fought the fire for about 10 minutes before they could get inside.

The bodies were carried from the home Friday afternoon, 10 hours after the blaze. Authorities delayed removal of the victims because of their investigation inside the house. Cartons of rubble taken from the home were taken to three mobile laboratories used at the scene of major crimes.

The victims were identified as Cheryl Beaudoin, about 29, Fred Jr., 12, Sharon, 10, Debbie, 9, Paul, 8, Rod, 6, Hilly, 5, Mary Lou, 4, and their cousin, Jennifer Santoro, 6, of Waterbury, who was staying for the night.

"They were polite, they weren't destructive," Mrs. Paolino said of the Beaudoin children. They would come to her house and ask, "Mrs. Paolino, is it all right if we take some hickory nuts from the yard?"

Beaudoin often worked around the house and repaired cars in the yard. The house, in a quiet, middle-class neighborhood, is surrounded by shrub-like fir trees next to the sidewalk.

"You'd have to go a long way to find a neighborhood better than this," said Wilfred Pouliot, another neighbor.

"They were very nice, quiet people. The children all were in our religious program. The kids were never in trouble," said the Rev. Joseph Donnelly, curate of St. Anthony's Roman Catholic Church about a mile from the Beaudoin home.

He said the family members nearly filled a church pew each Sunday when they went to Mass.

Accuse Carter Of Slipping Promise

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jimmy Carter isn't fulfilling his promises of full employment, equitable welfare reform, national health insurance and presidential appointment for blacks in significant numbers, the executive director of the National Urban League says.

Vernon Jordan said Friday that the organization's national convention here this weekend is being held to "register our complaints, register our anger, register our rage" at the treatment given blacks despite their heavy support of Carter in last year's presidential campaign.

Jordan said the Carter administration "has ignored the basic rule of American politics and that is that politicians in America help those who help them."

Some 94 per cent of the black people who went to the polls voted for Carter, a study by the Joint Center for Political Studies said. This support was crucial to Carter's victories in several states.

Jordan, who said he considers Carter a personal friend, criticized the President with some of the most negative statements yet made by a black leader.

He said black people feel "disillusionment and resentment based primarily on the fact that we made the difference in this election."

He addressed the Washington Press Club on the eve of the Urban League convention. The organization is composed primarily of minorities and the poor.

"I do believe that the President cares and is sensitive," Jordan said. But he said he could not say why Carter has not done more during the past six months that would appeal to blacks and other minorities.

Jordan maintained that Carter should not take the black vote for granted despite that blacks usually vote Democratic. He said he can think of no way Carter could ignore blacks and still win if he runs for a second term.

"I don't think the black vote is wedded to any one party. It still votes its interests, its needs, its rage," he said.

Jordan criticized Carter's comments against federal payments for abortions and the President's assertion that life is sometimes unfair and the government cannot be expected to correct all the inequities. Jordan described that as "probably the most upsetting statement the President has made."

He also objected to Carter's endorsing the Supreme Court decision that states can refuse to spend federal aid on abortions.

"For the President to join in with the court in what I think was a callous act is clearly disturbing," he said.

The Urban League has invited the administration to explain its attitude toward minorities and the poor and its programs in areas like housing and urban problems, welfare reform and employment.

Carter and cabinet secretaries Patricia Roberts Harris of Housing and Urban Development; Ray Marshall of Labor; Joseph A. Califano Jr. of Health, Education and Welfare, and Griffin Bell of Justice are all scheduled to address the conference next week. United Nations Ambassador Andrew Young will also speak to the expected 8,000 to 10,000 delegates.

TREASURY AWARD — The Circleville P.P.G. plant was recently awarded the Minute Man Gold Star award for employee participation in the Payroll Savings Plan of the United States Department of the Treasury. The Gold Star represents Circleville P.P.G.'s fifth consecutive year of outstanding participation in the Payroll Savings Plan. Pictured above at the recent award ceremony are, from the left, Howard Gabe, area manager of the Savings Bond Division of the Treasury Department; Kenneth F. Fosnaugh, Pickaway County Chairman for the Savings Bonds Division of the Treasury Department; and Esther Winks, from the employee relations department of the Circleville P.P.G. facility.

Outstanding Award To Mrs. Jones

Pauline Jones of 329 E. Ohio St. has been chosen the Outstanding Senior Citizen of Pickaway County and will receive her award at the Ohio State Fair.

The presentation will be made at 2 p.m. Aug. 20 by the Ohio Commission on Aging.

The Herald has been nominated for a Community Service award.

Central Ohio Senior Citizens' Day at the Ohio State Fair is set for Saturday, August 20.

Senior Citizen groups from Delaware, Fayette, Fairfield, Franklin, Licking, Madison, Pickaway, and Union Counties will be entertaining from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. in the Columbus Building on the Fairgrounds.

The Kitchen Band from Pickaway County will be performing at 11:15 a.m.

Senior Citizen groups will be selling their crafts during the Fair and information booths will be set up by Medicare, Social Security, American Association of Retired Persons (AARP), National Retired Teachers Association (NRTA), and National Council of Senior Citizens. Golden Buckeye Card applications will also be taken throughout the Fair.

Half price senior citizen admission tickets are available at Pickaway Senior Center. The senior citizen fair tickets will not be sold at the gate but must be purchased in advance by anyone aged 55 and older.

Weather

The high pressure ridge which broke the humid weather and gave us fair skies for the past several days is giving way to a rain-produced frontal system that is expected to be in the county by Sunday. Mostly sunny and warm today with a high near 85, mostly cloudy tonight with a low near 65, partly cloudy and warm Sunday with a 50 per cent chance of thunderstorms and a high near 85. The temperature extremes for Friday were 83 and 53.

Flood Victim Clings To Bible

WEST TAYLOR, Pa. (AP) — When they found newlywed Sharon Stoner's body in the flood's mud in nearby Pole Hollow, she had her prayer book in one hand and her wedding picture in the other.

"I watched their car come tumbling end over end down the mountain," Sam Felix, 33, recalled Friday.

"The lights were on and the engine was still running. I was screaming at the people on the bluff to help. But they couldn't hear me because of the thunder."

"They found another body down here, a woman. Her dead child was in one arm and her Bible in the other."

"It's as if God said, 'Okay you people, I'm going to punish you all at once.' And then he gave us hell for everything we'd ever done wrong."

Sam Felix is a pretty woman, married to Terry Felix, 30, a wiry steelworker, and mother of a very pretty 3-year-old girl named Heather Dawn.

Sam spent a good bit of Friday trying to put her life back together. "I came down here last night and I was manic. I was suicidal," she said, standing on a ledge overlooking a chasm of dirty brown water that still swirled down Dishonj Mountain.

"I almost jumped in. I was ready to end it all. We're ruined, wiped out. The house, the car, they're gone."

"Heather can't understand. She wants to know where the yard went. She can't understand what happened to Churchill, that's her dog."

"Everything is gone. My husband's coin collection was washed away. We were saving it to send Heather to college."

In the wee hours Wednesday, a mid-summer tempest sat over Pole Hollow and spit its fury.

"The lightning came down in balls and ran up and down the ridge," said Sam. "It was nonstop."

At the top of the mountain, the Laurel Run Reservoir was filling rapidly with rain, exerting a tremendous force against its breast.

At 1 a.m. Mrs. Felix, alone with Heather — her husband was working the overnight shift at a Bethlehem Steel Mill — picked up the phone.

She dialed the man who had named her Sam, her father, John Liebhenguth, of Sacramento, Calif.

"I've always called Daddy when I'm scared. I told him about the rain and the thunder. We kidded each other back and forth. I told him what with the drought he'd probably die of thirst."

A little over an hour later the dam ruptured, sending 100 million gallons of water in a wave down the mountainside.

Sam Felix spent a night of horror in an upstairs bedroom clinging to Heather and screaming, "God, get my daughter out."

She could see people on the bluff with flashlights but they couldn't hear her because of the roar of water that frothed at second-floor windows in the gulch town.

"I watched that wall of water go by and I thought, 'Mother of God, We're going to die,' she said."

The Felixes made it. But scores of others at Pole Hollow are missing and feared dead. At least 10 homes were washed away.

The Herald has been nominated for a Community Service award.

Central Ohio Senior Citizens' Day at the Ohio State Fair is set for Saturday, August 20.

Senior Citizen groups from Delaware, Fayette, Fairfield, Franklin, Licking, Madison, Pickaway, and Union Counties will be entertaining from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. in the Columbus Building on the Fairgrounds.

The Kitchen Band from Pickaway County will be performing at 11:15 a.m.

Senior Citizen groups will be selling their crafts during the Fair and information booths will be set up by Medicare, Social Security, American Association of Retired Persons (AARP), National Retired Teachers Association (NRTA), and National Council of Senior Citizens. Golden Buckeye Card applications will also be taken throughout the Fair.

Half price senior citizen admission tickets are available at Pickaway Senior Center. The senior citizen fair tickets will not be sold at the gate but must be purchased in advance by anyone aged 55 and older.

TREASURY AWARD — The Circleville P.P.G. plant was recently awarded the Minute Man Gold Star award for employee participation in the Payroll Savings Plan of the United States Department of the Treasury. The Gold Star represents Circleville P.P.G.'s fifth consecutive year of outstanding participation in the Payroll Savings Plan. Pictured above at the recent award ceremony are, from the left, Howard Gabe, area manager of the Savings Bond Division of the Treasury Department; Kenneth F. Fosnaugh, Pickaway County Chairman for the Savings Bonds Division of the Treasury Department; and Esther Winks, from the employee relations department of the Circleville P.P.G. facility.

Flood Victim Clings To Bible

WEST TAYLOR, Pa. (AP) — When they found newlywed Sharon Stoner's body in the flood's mud in nearby Pole Hollow, she had her prayer book in one hand and her wedding picture in the other.

"I watched their car come tumbling end over end down the mountain," Sam Felix, 33, recalled Friday.

"The lights were on and the engine was still running. I was screaming at the people on the bluff to help. But they couldn't hear me because of the thunder."

"They found another body down here, a woman. Her dead child was in one arm and her Bible in the other."

"It's as if God said, 'Okay you people, I'm going to punish you all at once.' And then he gave us hell for everything we'd ever done wrong."

Sam Felix is a pretty woman, married to Terry Felix, 30, a wiry steelworker, and mother of a very pretty 3-year-old girl named Heather Dawn.

Sam spent a good bit of Friday trying to put her life back together. "I came down here last night and I was manic. I was suicidal," she said, standing on a ledge overlooking a chasm of dirty brown water that still swirled down Dishonj Mountain.

"I almost jumped in. I was ready to end it all. We're ruined, wiped out. The house, the car, they're gone."

"Heather can't understand. She wants to know where the yard went. She can't understand what happened to Churchill, that's her dog."

"Everything is gone. My husband's coin collection was washed away. We were saving it to send Heather to college."

In the wee hours Wednesday, a mid-summer tempest sat over Pole Hollow and spit its fury.

"The lightning came down in balls and ran up and down the ridge," said Sam. "It was nonstop."

At the top of the mountain, the Laurel Run Reservoir was filling rapidly with rain, exerting a tremendous force against its breast.

At 1 a.m. Mrs. Felix, alone with Heather — her husband was working the overnight shift at a Bethlehem Steel Mill — picked up the phone.

She dialed the man who had named her Sam, her father, John Liebhenguth, of Sacramento, Calif.

"I've always called Daddy when I'm scared. I told him about the rain and the thunder. We kidded each other back and forth. I told him what with the drought he'd probably die of thirst."

A little over an hour later the dam ruptured, sending 100 million gallons of water in a wave down the mountainside.

Sam Felix spent a night of horror in an upstairs bedroom clinging to Heather and screaming, "God, get my daughter out."

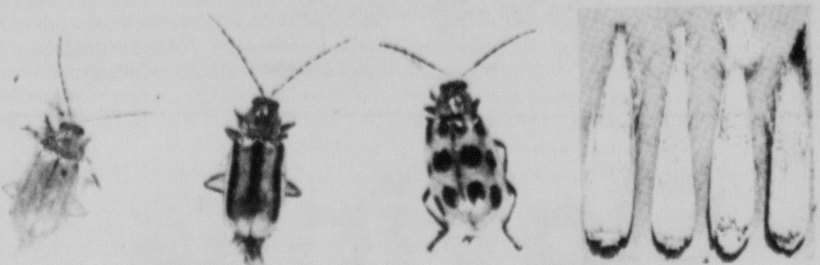

She could see people on the bluff with flashlights but they couldn't hear her because of the roar of water that frothed at second-floor windows in the gulch town.

"I watched that wall of water go by and I thought, 'Mother of God, We're going to die!'" she said.

The Felixes made it. But scores of others at Pole Hollow are missing and feared dead. At least 10 homes were washed away.

ROOTWORM — Corn rootworm adults are doing heavy damage in some Pickaway County corn fields. The Western, Northern and Southern rootworm adults feed on the silks of corn. The Southern variety is greenish yellow with twelve black dots. The Northern rootworm adults are pale yellow as they emerge from the ground but later turn a uniform green. The real damage from these critters is caused by cutting the silks off. If the corn was planted early the pollination process has probably taken place and no real damage will be noted; however, if corn was planted late, or if at present it is silking, damage can be heavy from silk cutting. The most likely fields of concern would be fields in corn following corn. "Insects of Field Crops, No. 545" suggests both malathion and sevin as being effective for control of silk beetle damage.

4-Hers At Wilderness Camp

Six 4-H members, Dale List, Gene List, Tad Cromley, Steve Fausnaugh, Ronald Hay, Jr., and Mike Perry, attended Outdoor Wilderness Camp at Canter's Cave this week, accompanied by Beverly Bechtel, Home Economics Agent.

This is not the usual 4-H camp, and is designed so that members experienced workshops in wilderness skills. It is not for the weak or faint-hearted.

Rappelling was taught by OSU rappelling instructors Alex Urger and Glen Surfer (both from Switzerland). 4-H members, under expert supervision, descended 70-80 foot cliffs and traversed ravines 90-100 feet deep. Canter's Cave 4-H camp has rich wooded hills, cliffs, and cave areas.

In orienteering workshops, members were taught by Ed Prince, a former Green Beret member and presently teaching at Rio Grande College. They learned compass reading, and metric measurements. They were given topographical maps,

Cutworms Are Active

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent,
Agriculture

Many areas of the county are experiencing heavy outbreaks of a pest known as the variegated cutworm.

Several calls in the last few days have indicated these "critters" are most active in flower gardens.

These cutworms are caterpillars that usually spend daylight hours hiding at the base of a plant or just beneath the soil. Feeding of leaves and flower of plants is done in the evening or at night.

This is confusing to the gardener, because as she arrives eating damage is present but no evidence of anything that might do it.

Controlling cutworms is not easy. But homeowners can try using sevin, covering the plant thoroughly and the base of the plant.

headings and pace counts and had to climb the hills and cliffs to find the points, stamp their sheets and return. This was a timed event.

Canoeing and water safety was taught by Susie Petterer, manager of all OSU pools. Members received basic Red Cross water safety instruction and those who "passed" will receive certificates. Members were transported from camp to Bob Evans farm where they received canoe rescue instruction and practiced canoeing on a 10 mile, 6 hour trip on Raccoon Creek. There was much "rescue practice" as "swamping" and sneaky tricks were numerous. All members were required to receive 3 hours of canoe instruction and practice before the trip, required to wear life jackets at all times, and were accompanied by agents and instructors.

Tom Stockdale, chairman of the Department of Natural Resources, along with 3 staff members taught the Fishery workshops. They brought down the mobile trailer from OSU; huge nets were used to test netting. They showed members how fish are electrified to stun them. Then the fish rise to the surface. This is done for stocking purposes. They did a water study for displaced oxygen and impurities that prohibit fish life.

In addition, those in the fishery workshop learned to identify over 20 different fish varieties, and visited Kincade Spring, the state Fish Hatchery, where they saw the process of raising species of fish (tiger muskie, rainbow trout, channel catfish, blue cats, flatheads) that are used to stock Ohio streams.

After workshops, members enjoyed night swimming at a new, lighted pool, volleyball, and a wildlife treasure hunt which saw members collecting a wide variety of specimens.

This was the 5th successful year of Outdoor Wilderness Camp. It is open to any 4-H member in the state who is interested in attending. Contact the Extension Office in early spring for dates and information on registration. It would especially be beneficial to those involved in conservation projects in these areas.

Farmers Should Check Corn Fields For Limiting Factors

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent,
Agriculture

Early July is a good time to take stock in this season's corn crop. By checking corn fields now, you may be able to pick out factors that are limiting yields, says Larry Shepherd, Extension Agronomist at The Ohio State University.

Corn, Soybean Day Aug. 4

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent,
Agriculture

Corn and soybeans, Ohio's top agricultural crops, will share the spotlight during a special program at Don Scott Field on Thursday, August 4.

During this "Corn and Soybean Day," agronomy and agricultural engineering specialists from the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center (OARDC) will be discussing the latest research information on growing and harvesting these two important cash crops.

Registration starts at 9 a.m. and the program begins promptly at 10 a.m. The morning will be devoted to engineering aspects. Topics will include managing a corn drying system, new headers for harvesting soybeans, effects of harvesting and drying methods on mechanical damage to shelled corn, improving soybean seed quality and quantity, and soil drainage for corn and soybeans. Also during the morning, the grain handling, drying, and storage system used at the Farm Science Review will be closely scrutinized.

After lunch and a welcome from OARDC Director Roy M. Kottman, the agronomy portion of the field day will begin at 1:30 p.m. Discussions will center on tillage systems for corn and soybean production, nitrogen rate and time of application for corn production, dates and rates of planting corn, a comparison of soybean production systems, and weed control in corn and soybeans.

Don Scott Field is located at 2400 Case Road in Columbus and is the site of the annual Farm Science Review held in September. Lunch tickets will be available at the registration desk before 10 a.m.

Corn and Soybean Day is just one of a number of field days sponsored annually by the OARDC to get new research information out to the farmer. The event will be held in cooperation with the Ohio Cooperative Extension Service and The Ohio State University.

Extension Calendar

July 25 — Farmers Club, Wardell's, 8 p.m.
July 28 — Jr. Leader meeting and swim party, Gold Cliff, 7 p.m.
July 31 — August 1 - Pickaway County Fair
August 4 — Corn and Soybean Day, Don Scott Field, Farm Science Review Site - all day
August 11 — Fair Evaluation Meeting, 8 p.m.
August 23 — Cattlemen's Barbecue, 6:30 p.m., Pete Everhart Farm

At this point in the growing season, problems may be easier to detect than later, explains Shepherd. You may be able to change your production practices to improve yield — if it is too late this year, then plan for next year.

"Every year we have some fields with much lower than expected yield," noted Shepherd. "Without good records it is almost impossible to determine the factors responsible. The reason is a lack of information; the higher the yield level, the more difficult it is to determine the problems," he points out.

Some important items to check are plant stands, fertility, weather, weeds and insects.

Plant Stands — Follow directions as outlined in the "Agronomy Guide", Extension Bulletin 472. Also, most of the little note books put out by corn companies have tables for plant population counts. For top yields Shepherd likes to see plant stands in the range of 22,000 to 24,000 plants per acre.

Fertility — You should have fertilized according to soil test recommendations from last year. Whether or not you did this, follow up with a plant analysis to evaluate the program. The problem most often found in corn in Ohio is a lack of nitrogen (in about 50 per cent of fields). The next most frequent problem is magnesium (in about 21 per cent).

Plant samples should be obtained at time of initial silk. Directions for taking plant samples are in the "Agronomy Guide". They are also available, with mailers, from the County Extension Service Office.

Weather — Shepherd says many farmers will think the weather is a problem this year. Corn can tolerate a great variation in weather as long as it has adequate moisture just before and during pollination. He suggests using a rain gauge and rainfall records and recording pollination dates.

Weeds — In many cases, the chemical selected will not control the main weed problem in the field, or the time of application even with the right chemical will cause failure, says Shepherd. This year a lack of rain after application caused most of such problems. The agronomist suggests a visit to each corn field. If you cannot identify certain weeds, take samples to the County Extension Service Office. It is important to know the weeds present in order to select the right control program, he insists.

Insects — And don't overlook the insect problems, Shepherd warns. Sometimes they can cause serious losses. Here again proper identification is important before an adequate control program can be selected.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING ON TAX BUDGET
Two copies of the Tax Budget as tentatively adopted for the Village of Tarlton in Pickaway County, Ohio, are on file in the office of the Clerk of said Village. These are for public inspection; and a Public Hearing on said Budget will be held at the Home of Shirley J. Wolfe in said Village, on Friday, the 29 day of July, 1977, at 10 o'clock A.M.

By BEVERLY S. BECHTEL

County Extension Agent,

Home Economics

As I'm out of the office often these days, I want to remind you about the following:

There are only a few seats left on the bus tour to Cincinnati to view the Stearns and Foster quilt collection. Those who have called in reservations should get in the $12 cost of the trip by Tuesday, August 22, or their seat on the bus will not be held.

We will leave the fairgrounds at 8 a.m., view the quilt display at Lockland High School, eat lunch at the Johnny Bench Restaurant, and be back no later than 3 p.m. Cost includes bus, admission, lunch.

Call our office (474-7534) for more information.

Extension Home Council will be at 1 p.m., Monday, August 25, at the Pickaway County Community Building. Anyone is welcome to attend, but each Extension Club should have a representative. Plans for projects and programs for the coming year will be discussed, chairmen assigned, and reports of state meeting given.

If you are a home economist you are invited to an Equipment Update for home economists sponsored by Jean Bauman, Ross County Home Agent, and myself. It will be held on August 15, 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m., at the Wear-Ever Aluminum Company, Inc., 1029 Eastern Avenue, Chillicothe.

Beverly Evans, Home Economist with Wear-Ever, will demonstrate new products, heat conductivity, display and discuss types of cookware, and give a metric update for equipment. There will be a sharing time where you can discuss with Wear-Ever officials the problems you have in your kitchens, and any ideas you have for new developments.

Reservations are needed by August 8. The update is free, and lunch is on your own. If there are homemakers or club leaders interested in attending this update, you are of course welcome, but you need to call our office and make reservations, too.

If you are a graduate home economist (or if home economics was a college minor) you might want to be on my mailing list for professional home economists. Periodically we have such updates, and mail out "Quotables" from Ohio State University, with latest information in the field.

Drivers To Get Back Licenses

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio motorists, who lost their licenses for more than six months prior to modification of the habitual offender point law, could get them back, under a bill advancing the legislature.

Sen. William H. Mussey, R-14 Batavia, the sponsor, won 29-1 approval for the measure in the Senate Thursday and forwarded it to the House.

Before it was amended, the habitual offender law called for license suspensions ranging up to five years. The new minimum was set at six months and with Mussey's bill that would become retroactive, so those who lose their licenses before June 1976 would get them back if the suspension exceeded six months.

Leadership in hay and stover handling just changed hands.

OMC's 540 Stacker and Mover are here.

We call it the One-Man Express, because the OMC 540 Stacker and 540 Mover lets you — one man — stack and move hay or stover fast. The 540 builds up to 1 1/2 tons stacks and gives you the ability to handle 5 to 6 tons of crop per hour. Compare these features:

Unique push-off system — Front of stacker bed tilts up as a hydraulic cylinder powers the push-off to unload. No more stuck stacks, no chains to pull or tear them apart.

Compression system uses three hydraulic cylinders for full force compaction. Tapered compression roof shapes stack for uniform density, to preserve crop quality.

Six-foot pick-up with 40 flails handles all size windrows. Stover crops can be put up without adjustments.

540 Mover has four free-floating tires that hug ground contours to slide easily under stacks. Hydraulic power lifts the stack for transport.

A Page Of Opinion

Retain Local Decisions

An alert citizen will keep his eye on lobbying groups which have as a goal the transfer of public decisions from the local level to the federal level, on the theory that influence can be exerted more effectively there. Such transfers of power have been going on for decades and one of the main reasons for it is pressure from special interest groups.

Now the National Education Association is going to ask Congress to assume more authority over the public schools by mandating maximum sizes of school classes. The Association's goal, of course, is to lower student-teacher ratios.

In many school districts those ratios have been on a steady decline for years. In some cases the trend is a conscious effort to improve teaching efficiency; in others it is simply a result of the transition from teaching personnel shortages to surpluses.

If the NEA wishes to conduct

tests, surveys and perform other research on the relative values of specific student-teacher ratios, fine. But the decisions on what they should be should remain at the local level. The schools are not yet a federal responsibility, and the cost largely is borne by the people of the community. They are the ones, through their elected representatives, who should be making the basic operating decisions.

Light On The Blackout

By PHYLLIS BATTELLE
NEW YORK — More than two years prior to last week's looting during the New York City blackout — incidents so audacious that most Americans were shocked, and even the most liberal thinkers floundered for rationales — future thinkers were anticipating just such behavior.

"Our industrialized society," predicted Dr. William Harman, director of the Stanford Research Institute, "faces a number of serious dilemmas — most traumatic of which may be a crisis in 'work-roles.'"

"In an industrialized society, social roles include holding a job, being married to someone who has a job, and being a student preparing for a job. However, with new technologies, there is not more need for full employment in production.

"If unemployment were only an economic problem, it could be handled with some sort of income maintenance program," pointed out Dr. Harman. "But unemployment is, more fundamentally, a psychological-cultural program. And growing numbers of people are defined out of the mainstream and made to accept for themselves the damning self-image of being superfluous.

"Under such circumstances, people become alienated from their country, and come to view themselves as being disadvantaged."

This is what happened. The looters were not starving Americans; they were the psychologically disadvantaged with chips on their shoulders. They were not stealing milk for their children, but color TV sets and three-piece business suits and velvet sofas — symbols of a prosperous society which they resented, for not cutting them in on the loot. They felt justified in what they did: "Christmas in July" is the way one looter described the outrageous occasion for ripping off his neighborhood jewelry merchant. In a paternalistic society, Santa Claus ought to be equally generous to everybody!

One of the great tragedies of this awesome series of events is that televised pictures of mobs of insolent looters, seemingly totally lacking a sense of guilt or sensitivity, wiped away the natural sympathies most Americans felt for the minorities, the poor and ghetto-bound.

The majority of blacks and Hispanics, living in the looted areas of the Bronx, Brooklyn, and Harlem, did not participate in the action, but they will suffer from its backlash. And ironically, as minority rights leaders have long noted with despair, the ripped-off victims of crime are the more successful members of the minority society, rather than the truly wealthy against whom the violent few really rebel — but do not dare to challenge. In my youth, there was an expression: "Them as has gets more; them as hasn't gets in trouble."

At a meeting of the World Future Assembly which I attended in Washington, D.C., two years ago, many of the world's intellectuals and "futurologists" met to discuss the crises and challenges facing the world in the next 25 years. At that meeting, Dr. Harman observed that "At this point in time in America, patriotism is only a nostalgia kick." He said the chief danger to the country might be "a societal nervous breakdown," resulting from the multiple disillusion of swift-moving industrialization, which appears to the population to "increase in power of the rich and stomp on the aspirations of the rest."

Herman Kahn, founding director of the Hudson Institute, a think tank, noted that America's enormous advances in areas such as technology and material wealth certainly will not make for Utopia. Our riches will diminish our happiness, inevitably, Kahn predicted. "I have long felt that increased income which benefits the country as a whole leads to a real decrease in the standard of life of its people." The prevailing wealth discourages those who do not share it, and no one wants to do menial work: comparing the enormous difference in per capita income between the U.S. and India, Kahn noted that even the upper-income American housewife must do her own chores, whereas most householders in India have an abundance of help.

In addressing the problems of the country, with its psychological-cultural patterns, most futurists felt there would be growing numbers of people feeling pinched out of the prosperity that others had. And Dr. Daniel Bell, sociology professor at Harvard, summed up the prevailing attitude by telling the story of a rabbi, who happened to be standing beside a couple of angels when earth was created.

The angels asked, "Well, how do you feel about God's planet: optimistic or pessimistic?"

The rabbi answered, "Oh, I'm optimistic."

The angels said, "Then why are you scowling?" Looking down at the globe, the rabbi said, "Well, to tell you the truth, I don't think my optimism is justified..."

Phone Calls Stir Ethics Committee

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Stung by reports of questionable long distance telephone calls by fellow lawmakers, the chairman of the House Ethics Committee vowed Thursday to establish a "fair and reasonable" standard for charging calls to state legislatures.

"I've been aware of these abuses," said committee chairman, Rep. Arthur Wilkowski, D-46 Toledo. "Hell, I've participated in them. I was in-different."

The committee, which does not meet regularly, was convened following published reports over the past several months questioning telephone calls made by some state representatives.

The Lucas County attorney appointed a three-member subcommittee to explore allegations of telephone abuse and attempt to establish guidelines. He said the panel would continue to meet after the legislative session adjourns for the summer July 29.

The current advisory opinion before the committee, written earlier this summer by Wilkowski and Rep. Alan E. Norris, R-27 Westerville, says House members may bill state lines for calls to their families or those involving legislative business.

Rep. Norman A. Murdock, R21 Cincinnati, said lawmakers should also be permitted to call their business offices in their hometowns when they are in Columbus for legislative sessions.

He warned the committee not to adopt a standard so strict as to have a "chilling effect on the activities of legitimate, serious, contributing members of this House."

Wilkowski proposed that legislators who make "personal and private" calls on state lines should have 30 days to pay for them out of their own pocket. These calls could then be expunged from House telephone records and would not be available to the public, he said.

Wilkowski opened the committee meeting with a statement in which he took blame for the panel's "lackluster performance over the last three years," but said he planned to reverse that.

Its meetings have been rare and substantive action less frequent.

"I'm going to have to confess as chairman of the Ethics Committee, I have not been aggressive. I have not provided the leadership," Wilkowski said.

Wilkowski said it would be in the "best interests of the people of Ohio" if the Democratic leadership removed him as chairman, but he added that he did not expect that to happen.

Wilkowski named himself, Norris and Rep. William E. Hinig, D-96 New Philadelphia to the subcommittee.

In a letter to Rep. Robert McEwen, R-77 Hillsboro, Wilkowski noted that telephone calls made by the 26-year-old lawmaker had been cited in the published reports.

Wilkowski said he had taken "custody" of all House telephone records from the executive secretary of the chamber to examine them.

"In the meantime," he wrote McEwen, "I am requesting that you do not discuss any further with the press calls which you admit making to your family. As you know, I have taken the public position that in my judgment no impropriety was involved and on that point I say no more."

Wilkowski said he anticipated a committee opinion relative to telephone calls would be issued "within the immediate future."

Come Fly With Me

WASHINGTON (AP) — If you want to fly in an open cockpit biplane, drift in the gondola of a hot air balloon, or land on the moon, visit National Air and Space Museum in Washington, D.C.

The 118 audio-visual displays at this branch of the Smithsonian Institution spare no effort to give visitors the feeling of flight.

Spectators look through the narrow triangular windows of an Apollo command module at film shot during the Apollo 11 lunar landing.

A huge screen nearly five stories high, multiple projectors and quadrophonic sound provide the backdrop for the balloon's open gondola, and a filmed ride in a barnstormer's biplane, viewed through the center wingstruts and the flashing disc of the propeller, provides onlookers with the thrills of flight without ever leaving the building.

They'll Do It Every Time

A Page Of Opinion

Retain Local Decisions

An alert citizen will keep his eye on lobbying groups which have as a goal the transfer of public decisions from the local level to the federal level, on the theory that influence can be exerted more effectively there. Such transfers of power have been going on for decades and one of the main reasons for it is pressure from special interest groups.

Now the National Education Association is going to ask Congress to assume more authority over the public schools by mandating maximum sizes of school classes. The Association's goal, of course, is to lower student-teacher ratios.

In many school districts those ratios have been on a steady decline for years. In some cases the trend is a conscious effort to improve teaching efficiency; in others it is simply a result of the transition from teaching personnel shortages to surpluses.

If the NEA wishes to conduct

tests, surveys and perform other research on the relative values of specific student-teacher ratios, fine. But the decisions on what they should be should remain at the local level. The schools are not yet a federal responsibility, and the cost largely is borne by the people of the community. They are the ones, through their elected representatives, who should be making the basic operating decisions.

Light On The Blackout

By PHYLLIS BATTELLE

NEW YORK — More than two years prior to last week's looting during the New York City blackout — incidents so audacious that most Americans were shocked, and even the most liberal thinkers floundered for rationales — future thinkers were anticipating just such behavior.

"Our industrialized society," predicted Dr. William Harman, director of the Stanford Research Institute, "faces a number of serious dilemmas — most traumatic of which may be a crisis in 'work-roles.'"

"In an industrialized society, social roles include holding a job, being married to someone who has a job, and being a student preparing for a job. However, with new technologies, there is not more need for full employment in production.

"If unemployment were only an economic problem, it could be handled with some sort of income maintenance program," pointed out Dr. Harman. "But unemployment is, more fundamentally, a psychological-cultural program. And growing numbers of people are defined out of the mainstream and made to accept for themselves the damning self-image of being superfluous.

"Under such circumstances, people become alienated from their country, and come to view themselves as being disadvantaged."

This is what happened. The looters were not starving Americans; they were the psychologically disadvantaged with chips on their shoulders. They were not stealing milk for their children, but color TV sets and three-piece business suits and velvet sofas — symbols of a prosperous society which they resented, for not cutting them in on the loot. They felt justified in what they did: "Christmas in July" is the way one looter described the outrageous occasion for ripping off his neighborhood jewelry merchant. In a paternalistic society, Santa Claus ought to be equally generous to everybody!

One of the great tragedies of this awesome series of events is that televised pictures of mobs of insolent looters, seemingly totally lacking a sense of guilt or sensitivity, wiped away the natural sympathies most Americans felt for the minorities, the poor and ghetto-bound.

The majority of blacks and Hispanics, living in the looted areas of the Bronx, Brooklyn, and Harlem, did not participate in the action, but they suffered from its backlash. And ironically, as minority rights leaders have long noted with despair, the ripped-off victims of crime are the more successful members of the minority society, rather than the truly wealthy against whom the violent few really rebel — but do not dare to challenge. In my youth, there was an expression: "Them as has gets more; them as hasn't gets in trouble."

At a meeting of the World Future Assembly which I attended in Washington, D.C., two years ago, many of the world's intellectuals and "futurologists" met to discuss the crises and challenges facing the world in the next 25 years. At that meeting, Dr. Harman observed that "At this point in time in America, patriotism is only a nostalgia kick." He said the chief danger to the country might be "a societal nervous breakdown," resulting from the multiple disillusion of swift-moving industrialization, which appears to the population to "increase in power of the rich and stomp on the aspirations of the rest."

Herman Kahn, founding director of the Hudson Institute, a think tank, noted that America's enormous advances in areas such as technology and material wealth certainly will not make for Utopia. Our riches will diminish our happiness, inevitably, Kahn predicted. "I have long felt that increased income which benefits the country as a whole leads to a real decrease in the standard of life of its people." The prevailing wealth discourages those who do not share it, and no one wants to do menial work: comparing the enormous difference in per capita income between the U.S. and India, Kahn noted that even the upper-income American housewife must do her own chores, whereas most householders in India have an abundance of help.

In addressing the problems of the country, with its psychological-cultural patterns, most futurists felt there would be growing numbers of people feeling pinched out of the prosperity that others had. And Dr. Daniel Bell, sociology professor at Harvard, summed up the prevailing attitude by telling the story of a rabbi, who happened to be standing beside a couple of angels when earth was created.

The angels asked, "Well, how do you feel about God's planet: optimistic or pessimistic?"

The rabbi answered, "Oh, I'm optimistic."

The angels said, "Then why are you scowling?" Looking down at the globe, the rabbi said, "Well, to tell you the truth, I don't think my optimism is justified..."

Phone Calls Stir Ethics Committee

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Stung by reports of questionable long distance telephone calls by fellow lawmakers, the chairman of the House Ethics Committee vowed Thursday to establish a "fair and reasonable" standard for charging calls to state lines.

"I've been aware of these abuses," said committee chairman, Rep. Arthur Wilkowski, D-46 Toledo. "Hell, I've participated in them. I was in-different."

The committee, which does not meet regularly, was convened following published reports over the past several months questioning telephone calls made by some state representatives.

The Lucas County attorney appointed a three-member subcommittee to explore allegations of telephone abuse and attempt to establish guidelines. He said the panel would continue to meet after the legislative session adjourns for the summer July 29.

The current advisory opinion before the committee, written earlier this summer by Wilkowski and Rep. Alan E. Norris, R-27 Westerville, says House members may bill state lines for calls to their families or those involving legislative business.

Rep. Norman A. Murdock, R21 Cincinnati, said lawmakers should also be permitted to call their business offices in their hometowns when they are in Columbus for legislative sessions.

He warned the committee not to adopt a standard so strict as to have a "chilling effect on the activities of legitimate, serious, contributing members of this House."

Wilkowski proposed that legislators who make "personal and private" calls on state lines should have 30 days to pay for them out of their own pocket. These calls could then be expunged from House telephone records and would not be available to the public, he said.

Wilkowski opened the committee meeting with a statement in which he took blame for the panel's "lackluster performance over the last three years," but said he planned to reverse that.

Its meetings have been rare and substantive action less frequent.

"I'm going to have to confess as chairman of the Ethics Committee, I have not been aggressive. I have not provided the leadership," Wilkowski said.

Wilkowski said it would be in the "best interests of the people of Ohio" if the Democratic leadership removed him as chairman, but he added that he did not expect that to happen.

Wilkowski named himself, Norris and Rep. William E. Hinig, D-96 New Philadelphia to the subcommittee.

In a letter to Rep. Robert McEwen, R-77 Hillsboro, Wilkowski noted that telephone calls made by the 26-year-old lawmaker had been cited in the published reports.

Wilkowski said he had taken "custody" of all House telephone records from the executive secretary of the chamber to examine them.

"In the meantime," he wrote McEwen, "I am requesting that you do not discuss any further with the press calls which you admit making to your family. As you know, I have taken the public position that in my judgment no impropriety was involved and on that point I say no more."

Wilkowski said he anticipated a committee opinion relative to telephone calls would be issued "within the immediate future."

Come Fly With Me

WASHINGTON (AP) — If you want to fly in an open cockpit biplane, drift in the gondola of a hot air balloon, or land on the moon, visit National Air and Space Museum in Washington, D.C.

The 118 audio-visual displays at this branch of the Smithsonian Institution spare no effort to give visitors the feeling of flight.

Spectators look through the narrow triangular windows of an Apollo command module at film shot during the Apollo II lunar landing.

A huge screen nearly five stories high, multiple projectors and quadrophonic sound provide the backdrop for the balloon's open gondola, and a filmed ride in a barnstormer's biplane, viewed through the center wingstruts and the flashing disc of the propeller, provides onlookers with the thrills of flight without ever leaving the building.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Teen Babysitter Disturbs Mother

DEAR ABBY: We are the parents of two boys, ages 6 and 7. A very sweet 14-year-old neighbor girl babysits for us. She's always been very reliable, and the boys adore her.

Several nights ago the 6-year-old told me that the sitter said they could stay up an hour past their bedtime if they took off their clothes and ran through the house naked. He said they refused and went to bed. The 7-year-old confirmed the story and added a few more disturbing details.

I know that kids sometimes make up things, but after I explained the seriousness of their accusations, they assured me they were telling the truth. It's hard to believe this girl would do something like this, but what do I do now? Should I talk to her mother? She's a nice woman and would probably be shocked and hurt, but she'd want to know if this were true.

Or should I talk to the girl? I can't have her babysit again thinking something might happen to my sons. I don't want to hurt anyone unnecessarily, but children must be protected.

PERPLEXED MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Talk to the girl, not in a judgmental or accusatory way, but as a concerned mother who doesn't want her sons involved in further nude games. You could also use this incident to impart some badly needed elementary sex education to a young girl who is naturally curious.

DEAR ABBY: What in your opinion, is the most important ingredient in a successful party?

THE HOSTESS WITH THE MOSTEST
DEAR MOSTEST: People! It's not

ECONOGRAM

ECONOMIC INFORMATION RELATING TO AGRICULTURE

Wholesale prices dropped 0.6 per cent for June. But unemployment increased to 7.1 per cent of the labor force, up from 6.9 per cent in May. The drop in wholesale prices was the first decline in 10 months and the steepest in 45 months. It indicates some slow down in the inflation rate. A sharp decline in farm prices helped push down overall wholesale prices. The unemployment boast of 210,000 workers was due largely to new entrants to the labor force as college students entered the job market. The unemployment rate among full time workers remained at 6.5 per cent for June. The rate for women increased to 7.2 per cent from 6.6 per cent while teenage joblessness climbed to 18.6 per cent from 17.9 per cent in May.

Consumer installment credit outstanding totaled $185.25 billion at the end of May, up 12.9 per cent from a year earlier. The rise in May of $2.53 billion on a seasonally adjusted basis was less than April's $2.66 billion and March's record $2.72 billion. But it was still the third largest increase on record. Auto debt outstanding declined but bank credit-card debt increased.

Prices received by farmers decreased 5 per cent to 184 per cent of the 1967 average in the month ending in mid-June. The major contributors to the decline were lower prices for soybeans, cattle, corn, wheat, vegetables and fruit. Higher prices for hogs and dairy products were partially offsetting. The mid-June index was 6 per cent below one year ago. Prices paid by farmers for commodities, services, interest, taxes, and wages was 203 or 1 per cent below mid-May, but 5 per cent above June, 1976. The mid-May to mid-June decline was due to lower prices for feeder livestock and feed.

Corn crop in U.S. on July 1 was estimated at 6.33 billion bushels. If realized, this would be 2 per cent above the record set in 1976. Yields from the 70.8 million acres to be harvested for grain were placed at a 89.4 bushels per acre. This compares to 87.4 in 1976. The crop in the Corn Belt was considered in good condition though more rain is needed to maintain development. In Ohio, the 3,750,000 acres are expected to yield 85.0 bushels per acre for a total crop of 318,750,000 bushels. Last year the Ohio crop was 395,920,000 bushels from 3,920,000 acres with 101 bushels per acre. In the U.S., the change between the July 1 forecast and final production have averaged 283 million bushels for the past 10 years that a July 1 forecast has been made. Six times the forecast was above July 1 by an average of 286 million bushels and below four times by an average of 278 million bushels.

Wheat crop in the U.S. was forecast as of July 1 at 2,044 million bushels or 5 per cent less than last year. This is the third largest crop on record. The reduction is due to 4.3 million fewer acres as yields at 30.7 are slightly above the 1976 level of 30.3 bushels. In Ohio, farmers are expected to harvest 67,800,000 bushels from 1.54 million acres. Yields are expected to average 44 bushels per acre; up from 40 bushels last year.

Sow farrowings in the fourth quarter of 1977 may be larger than the 4 per cent indicated on June 1. A large corn crop is not yet a reality, but lower feed grain prices seem likely. Current favorable relationships between hog prices and corn may encourage expansion by fall and the first half of 1978. This could lead to losses or lower profits in hog feeding next year. With these developments the peak of the current cycle may occur in the last half of 1978 or the first half of 1979.

what you put on the TABLE, it's what you put on the CHAIRS that makes a good party.

DEAR ABBY: I've been living with Larry for 14 months. We get along perfectly except when I bring up the subject of marriage. He says, "Maybe someday, but not now!"

When we decided to live together it was supposed to be a "trial" to see if we got along well enough to get married. I think we've passed the test, but apparently Larry still isn't sure. He doesn't even want to get officially engaged.

I am 19 and he is 25. I was married for two years, and I'm sure we could make a marriage work.

Should I drop the subject, or should Larry give me a date?

WANTS MARRIAGE

DEAR WANTS: If Larry doesn't give you a date, drop the subject AND also Larry.

SALT CREEK VALLEY GRANGE

"Joy Is Like The Rain", a vocal solo by Joy Bidwell, was the timely beginning of the Exchange Program presented by Star Grange at the July 19 meeting of Saltcreek Valley Grange, Wolfe Hall, in Tarlton.

Directed by Helen Hammill, lecturer, the following members presented a variety of humorous, recreational, and educational numbers to support the guiding theme: "Laugh Your Way To Work", as arranged by the lecturer Helen Hammill: Dawn and Joy Bidwell, Harold and Frances Furniss, Otha and Ernestine Lewis, Carroll and Marie Reid, Fran Folrod, Laura Long, and Joan Dawson.

Hoyt Timmons, master, conducted the regular order of business after appreciative comments to Mr. Reid, master, and other guests from Star Grange and a welcome to Ethel Hoover from Scioto Valley. All shared in singing Happy Birthday greetings to Randolph Wolfe.

Barbara McKenzie reported concerning current endeavors of County Grange Youth. For cooperation with State Youth Camp attendance, a message of appreciation was read from Mark and Randy Wolfe.

A decision was made to continue with contributions for State Fair attendance by residents of Central Ohio Psychiatric Hospital.

Timmons thanked the members who helped with recent improvements in and around the Grange Hall, and guided arrangements for help during County Fair — July 31 through August 5. The August 2 meeting was cancelled as members would be participating and observing at the Fair. Loring Hill extended an invitation to his Kingston Gardens for the August 16 annual picnic.

Arrangements for the concluding Social Hour were in charge of Donna Beougher, Jeanette and Melissa Armstrong, Raymond and Gladys Hedges.

Youths Picked To Attend Bureau School

The Pickaway County Farm Bureau Board recently selected Barbara Bolender, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Bolender, Route 4, Circleville, and David Rittinger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Rittinger, 30096 Wolfe Road, Circleville, to attend the 1977 Farm Bureau State-wide Youth School.

The Youth School will be held July 24-29 at Otterbein College, Westerville, Ohio.

The purpose of the school will be to offer advanced training in leadership and recreational skills. Each session will be instructed by experienced instructors allowing the young people to learn by doing.

The highlights of the week will be a Defensive Driving Course, Advisory Council Discussions, and a Coop Store will be organized and operated by the young people.

The School will be attended by 104 rural young people, age 16 through their middle twenties who have already attended a regional summer youth conference.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Teen Babysitter Disturbs Mother

DEAR ABBY: We are the parents of two boys, ages 6 and 7. A very sweet 14-year-old neighbor girl babysits for us. She's always been very reliable, and the boys adore her.

Several nights ago the 6-year-old told me that the sitter said they could stay up an hour past their bedtime if they took off their clothes and ran through the house naked. He said they refused and went to bed. The 7-year-old confirmed the story and added a few more disturbing details.

I know that kids sometimes make up things, but after I explained the seriousness of their accusations, they assured me they were telling the truth.

It's hard to believe this girl would do something like this, but what do I do now? Should I talk to her mother? She's a nice woman and would probably be shocked and hurt, but she'd want to know if this were true. Or should I talk to the girl? I can't have her babysit again thinking something might happen to my sons. I don't want to hurt anyone unnecessarily, but children must be protected.

PERPLEXED MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Talk to the girl, not in a judgmental or accusatory way, but as a concerned mother who doesn't want her sons involved in further nude games. You could also use this incident to impart some badly needed elementary sex education to a young girl who is naturally curious.

DEAR ABBY: What in your opinion, is the most important ingredient in a successful party?

THE HOSTESS WITH THE MOSTEST
DEAR MOSTEST: People! It's not

ECONOGRAM

ECONOMIC INFORMATION RELATING TO AGRICULTURE

Wholesale prices dropped 0.6 per cent for June. But unemployment increased to 7.1 per cent of the labor force, up from 6.9 per cent in May. The drop in wholesale prices was the first decline in 10 months and the steepest in 45 months. It indicates some slow down in the inflation rate. A sharp decline in farm prices helped push down overall wholesale prices. The unemployment boast of 210,000 workers was due largely to new entrants to the labor force as college students entered the job market. The unemployment rate among full time workers remained at 6.5 per cent for June. The rate for women increased to 7.2 per cent from 6.6 per cent while teenage joblessness climbed to 18.6 per cent from 17.9 per cent in May.

Consumer installment credit outstanding totaled $185.25 billion at the end of May, up 12.9 per cent from a year earlier. The rise in May of $2.53 billion on a seasonally adjusted basis was less than April's $2.66 billion and March's record $2.72 billion. But it was still the third largest increase on record. Auto debt outstanding declined but bank credit-card debt increased.

Prices received by farmers decreased 5 per cent to 184 per cent of the 1967 average in the month ending in mid-June. The major contributors to the decline were lower prices for soybeans, cattle, corn, wheat, vegetables and fruit. Higher prices for hogs and dairy products were partially offsetting. The mid-June index was 6 per cent below one year ago. Prices paid by farmers for commodities, services, interest, taxes, and wages was 203 or 1 per cent below mid-May, but 5 per cent above June, 1976. The mid-May to mid-June decline was due to lower prices for feeder livestock and feed.

Corn crop in U.S. on July 1 was estimated at 6.33 billion bushels. If realized, this would be 2 per cent above the record set in 1976. Yields from the 70.8 million acres to be harvested for grain were placed at a 89.4 bushels per acre. This compares to 87.4 in 1976. The crop in the Corn Belt was considered in good condition though more rain is needed to maintain development. In Ohio, the 3,750,000 acres are expected to yield 85.0 bushels per acre for a total crop of 318,750,000 bushels. Last year the Ohio crop was 395,920,000 bushels from 3,920,000 acres with 101 bushels per acre. In the U.S., the change between the July 1 forecast and final production have averaged 283 million bushels for the past 10 years that a July 1 forecast has been made. Six times the forecast was above July 1 by an average of 286 million bushels and below four times by an average of 278 million bushels.

Wheat crop in the U.S. was forecast as of July 1 at 2,044 million bushels or 5 per cent less than last year. This is the third largest crop on record. The reduction is due to 4.3 million fewer acres as yields at 30.7 are slightly above the 1976 level of 30.3 bushels. In Ohio, farmers are expected to harvest 67,800,000 bushels from 1.54 million acres. Yields are expected to average 44 bushels per acre; up from 40 bushels last year.

Sow farrowings in the fourth quarter of 1977 may be larger than the 4 per cent indicated on June 1. A large corn crop is not yet a reality, but lower feed grain prices seem likely. Current favorable relationships between hog prices and corn may encourage expansion by fall and the first half of 1978. This could lead to losses or lower profits in hog feeding next year. With these developments the peak of the current cycle may occur in the last half of 1978 or the first half of 1979.

what you put on the TABLE, it's what you put on the CHAIRS that makes a good party.

DEAR ABBY: I've been living with Larry for 14 months. We get along perfectly except when I bring up the subject of marriage. He says, "Maybe someday, but not now!"

When we decided to live together it was supposed to be a "trial" to see if we got along well enough to get married. I think we've passed the test, but apparently Larry still isn't sure. He doesn't even want to get officially engaged.

I am 19 and he is 25. I was married for two years, and I'm sure we could make a marriage work.

Should I drop the subject, or should Larry give me a date?

WANTS MARRIAGE

DEAR WANTS: If Larry doesn't give you a date, drop the subject AND also Larry.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "SOCIAL FLOP" IN LITTLE ROCK: Here's a helpful tip for the shy woman. One very wise man said; "A beautiful woman is the one I notice. A charming woman is the one who notices ME."

Miss Cole, Mr. Young Engaged

KATHLEEN COLE

Announcement is being made of the engagement and approaching marriage of Kathleen Cole, daughter of Mrs. Ann Louise Cole, Stoutsville, and the late Mr. Hubert W. Cole, to Mr. Steve Young, son of Mrs. Lucy Belle Young, Tarlton, and the late Mr. Mander Young.

Miss Cole is a 1975 graduate of Amanda Clearcreek High School and attended Bliss Business College.

Mr. Young is a 1973 graduate of Logan Elm High School and is presently employed at Owens-Illinois.

The open church wedding will be an event of 7:30 p.m., September 17 at the Amanda Presbyterian Church. A reception will be held immediately following the ceremony at the Tarlton Community Hall.

Nuptials Planned

GRACE (BETH) BEAVERS

Mr. and Mrs. Arnold J. Beavers, 13142 Carson Road, Orient, are announcing the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter Grace, to Mr. Robert Carl Severs Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Carl Severs Sr., Springfield.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Westfall High School and a communications major at Ohio State University; she is employed by Lazarus, Columbus.

Mr. Severs is a graduate of Northwestern High School, Springfield, and is a agriculture economics major at Ohio State University; he is presently employed by Kal Kan Foods.

The wedding will be an event of September 10 at the Southwest Church of the Nazarene.

OSU Trustees Approve Bill

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio State University trustees approved Friday a revised $382 million budget for the 1977-78 fiscal year.

Officials said the package reflects a $2 million reduction in expenditures as a result of deletions made by the legislature from the appropriations bill enacted June 20 and signed by Gov. James A. Rhodes the next day.

In other business, the board decided it would not be feasible for it to make moral judgments as to the appropriateness of policies of firms with which it makes investments from university endowment funds.

The board was responding to questions raised recently by two student groups about investments made in American corporations doing business in South Africa.

A statement adopted by the board said it felt it could not possibly use as a prime investment criterion a corporation's international and domestic trade arrangements and the fairness of the policies of each foreign nation in which it does business.

Kuhlwein's Host German Relatives

Dr. Wolfgang Kuhlwein, a professor of Linguistics at Trier University in Trier, West Germany and son, Rudiger age 9 were entertained with a "carry-in" reception last Saturday noon when 61 relatives gathered at St. Matthew Lutheran church in Lockbourne. They were house guests of Ray & Vivian Kuhlwein who drove to Fredonia, N.Y. to bring them to Ohio.

Dr. Kuhlwein is teaching linguistics, as a guest professor, the month of July at the State University, Fredonia, New York.

The summer of 1969 Dr. Kuhlwein was associated at the same university and visited the late Paul and Catharine Barch. At that time he became acquainted with several descendants of the G. Leonard Kuhlwein family who migrated here in 1852 from Germany. Paul & Catharine visited Dr. Kuhlwein and family in the village of Aach in 1973 as did Ray and Vivian in June of 1975.

Dr. Kuhlwein and son will visit Georgetown University, in Washington D.C. returning home to the village of Aach the middle of August. His wife, Christa, son Holger 11 and 4 year old daughter, Sonya will be awaiting their return to hear all the happenings in America especially renewing acquaintances with the American branch of Kuhlweins'.

Mr. and Mrs. Ron Younkin entertained Dr. Wolfgang Kuhlwein, and son Rudiger, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Stout and Ralph Barch recently at a dinner party, honoring Mr. Barch's birthday.

Union Lauds House Vote

"Ohio family agriculture took a giant step forward toward receiving protection from encroachment by non farm tax free investment trust funds as the Ohio House of Representatives passed Substitute House Bill 633," stated "Charlie" Nash, "Executive Director of the Ohio Farmers Union.

This bill was introduced by Representative Harry Malott of the 87th district. The urgency of this legislation was brought about by a recent proposal of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust Company and the Merrill, Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith brokerage firm.

"This proposal (Ag-Land Trust), is designed to attract money from pension funds and other tax exempt institutions for investment in corn, soybean, wheat and other grain farms", Nash stated. If allowed to go unchecked, "Ag-Land Trust" would create a new generation of sharecroppers.

The bill moves to the Ohio Senate where it will be acted upon, hopefully in the near future. Upon passage in the State Senate, this bill will outlaw investment trust firms from buying farmland in Ohio.

The Ohio Farmers Union urges every farmer to write to his State Senator at once urging the adoption of this crucial bill. These efforts will help preserve family agriculture in Ohio.

I wish to thank the Stoutsville Rural Route Patrons, Heidelberg Church and members of the community for the reception, gifts and cards given for my retirement.

GALE CREAGER

Federal Crop Insurance Would Aid Disaster Woes

By TOM SPRING
Herald Staff Writer

A federal crop insurance program, a bill now before Congress, will be used to solve disaster problems according to Secretary of Agriculture Robert Bergland.

Bergland, speaking to approximately 150 members of the National Association of Farm Broadcasters, said, "I believe that the disaster programs of the United States Department of Agriculture are in and of themselves, a disaster."

In addition, Bergland said the administration is planning an increase in the target price of wheat above the current $2.48. He said it has been increased 17 cents in the House of Representatives and 25 cents in the Senate as members of Congress seek to iron out the bill.

Bergland predicted another big corn crop for 1977 and said the possibility of using wheat alcohol with gasoline, "gasahol," for fuel, is uncertain as suppliers are concerned about the dependability of wheat to run a processing plant which would be built to accommodate the operation.

Some states are testing the use of corn alcohol with gasoline. Three gallons of alcohol can be obtained from a bushel of corn or wheat.

Bergland said, "We are asking for an increase" in money for basic research as food demands in the world are projected to double in 35 years. Two areas of research needed, he said, are in water management of ground-water reserves and brucellosis which is affecting dairy operations in Ohio, Michigan and New York.

John C. White, deputy secretary of agriculture, said that 2,000 of the 3,000 counties in the country are participating in a drought or flood disaster program. "Something is wrong. Many of these counties are producing better than ever before," White said the department hopes to replace the disaster program with the federal crop insurance program just introduced in Congress.

In addition, he said, "There will be a new and dedicated thrust for nutritional information for humans in this administration.

"We know more about cows heavy with calves than we do about pregnant mothers. We know more about the nutritional requirements of our pet poodle than of our children. This will stop."

Assistant secretary Dale Hathaway said that one of every three harvested acres (almost 100 million acres) were exported in 1976. Over one-half of the wheat and soybean production went overseas.

Hathaway said, "We're doing extremely well in world trade with one or two exceptions."

Exports reached $23 billion last year and are expected to reach $24 billion this year.

Cheerleaders Receive Honor

Three Pickaway County high school cheerleaders have been recognized by the Association of Distinguished Young Americans. Teresa Van Pelt and Kelly Martin, both of Teays Valley and Cynthia Gifford, of Logan Elm have been selected as members of Who's Who among American High School Cheerleaders.

They are now eligible for ADYA All-American recognition and a $1,000 college scholarship.

The association strives to honor outstanding students for leadership, service and contributions to their school and community. A very small percentage of cheerleaders nationwide receive this high honor.

USDA is forecasting an abundant U.S. harvest, particularly in cotton, oil, oilseed, livestock, fruit, nuts and vegetables.

Two projects are the farmer reserve program to protect farmers and consumers and to deal with excess supplies and the target price concept which is being used to insure stable prices.

Hathaway said major problems are beef herd reduction and wheat prices which have fallen due to a decline in the world supply and demand situation. Grains have fallen in exports although "everything else is up," Hathaway said.

He said the administration hopes that international negotiations in London will smooth out the "boom or bust" for farmers.

Hathaway said that good or bad weather may have more effect on prices than any economic policies and that one of the greatest threats to the export market is the inflationary effect of production costs to the farmer.

In discussing target prices for wheat, Hathaway said, "The administration feels it ought to be comparable for all crops and cover the variable costs of production but not guarantee a profit in every year... We feel that in the long run the market prices will be above the target prices."

M. Rupert Cutler, assistant secretary of agriculture, said the cooperative weather program between the USDA and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Association is providing information on weather and how it will affect farm activities.

Cutler announced a new network, the Agricultural Weather Network, located in Maryland, which is to expand nationwide this summer. According to Cutler, volunteers across the country will phone weather observations via a toll-free number to a terminal in Maryland, which will compile and distribute the information.

He said that the USDA will not spend large amounts of money to research weather modification until it is deemed worthy of the taxpayers' money. Although some states are studying it, Cutler said the USDA is still skeptical.

In addition, Cutler said the USDA and the United States Fish and Wildlife Service plan to work together to bring fish and wildlife information to the county level. He said the Soil Conservation Service is a logical vehicle for distributing information on soil conservation, wildlife, energy and resource development.

College To Host Special Olympics

Union Lauds House Vote

"Ohio family agriculture took a giant step forward toward receiving protection from encroachment by non farm tax free investment trust funds as the Ohio House of Representatives passed Substitute House Bill 633," stated Charlie Nash, Executive Director of the Ohio Farmers Union.

This bill was introduced by Representative Harry Malott of the 87th district. The urgency of this legislation was brought about by a recent proposal of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust Company and the Merrill, Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith brokerage firm.

"This proposal (Ag-Land Trust), is designed to attract money from pension funds and other tax exempt institutions for investment in corn, soybean, wheat and other grain farms", Nash stated. If allowed to go unchecked, "Ag-Land Trust" would create a new generation of sharecroppers.

The bill moves to the Ohio Senate where it will be acted upon, hopefully in the near future. Upon passage in the State Senate, this bill will outlaw investment trust firms from buying farmland in Ohio.

The Ohio Farmers Union urges every farmer to write to his State Senator at once urging the adoption of this crucial bill. These efforts will help preserve family agriculture in Ohio.

I wish to thank the Stoutsville Rural Route Patrons, Heidelberg Church and members of the community for the reception, gifts and cards given for my retirement.

GALE CREAGER

Federal Crop Insurance Would Aid Disaster Woes

By TOM SPRING
Herald Staff Writer

A federal crop insurance program, a bill now before Congress, will be used to solve disaster problems according to Secretary of Agriculture Robert Bergland.

Bergland, speaking to approximately 150 members of the National Association of Farm Broadcasters, said, "I believe that the disaster programs of the United States Department of Agriculture are in and of themselves, a disaster."

In addition, Bergland said the administration is planning an increase in the target price of wheat above the current $2.48. He said it has been increased 17 cents in the House of Representatives and 25 cents in the Senate as members of Congress seek to iron out the bill.

Bergland predicted another big corn crop for 1977 and said the possibility of using wheat alcohol with gasoline, "gasahol," for fuel, is uncertain as suppliers are concerned about the dependability of wheat to run a processing plant which would be built to accommodate the operation.

Some states are testing the use of corn alcohol with gasoline. Three gallons of alcohol can be obtained from a bushel of corn or wheat.

Bergland said, "We are asking for an increase" in money for basic research as food demands in the world are projected to double in 35 years. Two areas of research needed, he said, are in water management of ground-water reserves and brucellosis which is affecting dairy operations in Ohio, Michigan and New York.

John C. White, deputy secretary of agriculture, said that 2,000 of the 3,000 counties in the country are participating in a drought or flood disaster program. "Something is wrong. Many of these counties are producing better than ever before." White said the department hopes to replace the disaster program with the federal crop insurance program just introduced in Congress.

In addition, he said, "There will be a new and dedicated thrust for nutritional information for humans in this administration."

"We know more about cows heavy with calves than we do about pregnant mothers. We know more about the nutritional requirements of our pet poodle than of our children. This will stop."

Assistant secretary Dale Hathaway said that one of every three harvested acres (almost 100 million acres) were exported in 1976. Over one-half of the wheat and soybean production went overseas.

Hathaway said, "We're doing extremely well in world trade with one or two exceptions."

Exports reached $23 billion last year and are expected to reach $24 billion this year.

Cheerleaders Receive Honor

Three Pickaway County high school cheerleaders have been recognized by the Association of Distinguished Young Americans. Teresa Van Pelt and Kelly Martin, both of Teays Valley and Cynthia Gifford, of Logan Elm have been selected as members of Who's Who among American High School Cheerleaders.

They are now eligible for ADYA All-American recognition and a $1,000 college scholarship.

The association strives to honor outstanding students for leadership, service and contributions to their school and community. A very small percentage of cheerleaders nationwide receive this high honor.

USDA is forecasting an abundant U.S. harvest, particularly in cotton, oil, oilseed, livestock, fruit, nuts and vegetables.

Two projects are the farmer reserve program to protect farmers and consumers and to deal with excess supplies and the target price concept which is being used to insure stable prices.

Hathaway said major problems are beef herd reduction and wheat prices which have fallen due to a decline in the world supply and demand situation. Grains have fallen in exports although "everything else is up," Hathaway said.

He said the administration hopes that international negotiations in London will smooth out the "boom or bust" for farmers.

Hathaway said that good or bad weather may have more effect on prices than any economic policies and that one of the greatest threats to the export market is the inflationary effect of production costs to the farmer.

In discussing target prices for wheat, Hathaway said, "The administration feels it ought to be comparable for all crops and cover the variable costs of production but not guarantee a profit in every year... We feel that in the long run the market prices will be above the target prices."

M. Rupert Cutler, assistant secretary of agriculture, said the cooperative weather program between the USDA and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Association is providing information on weather and how it will affect farm activities.

Cutler announced a new network, the Agricultural Weather Network, located in Maryland, which is to expand nationwide this summer. According to Cutler, volunteers across the country will phone weather observations via a toll-free number to a terminal in Maryland, which will compile and distribute the information.

He said that the USDA will not spend large amounts of money to research weather modification until it is deemed worthy of the taxpayers' money. Although some states are studying it, Cutler said the USDA is still skeptical.

In addition, Cutler said the USDA and the United States Fish and Wildlife Service plan to work together to bring fish and wildlife information to the county level. He said the Soil Conservation Service is a logical vehicle for distributing information on soil conservation, wildlife, energy and resource development.

College To Host Special Olympics
DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — The Cerebral Palsy Games, olympics-style competition for multihandicapped persons, will be held Aug. 6 at Wright State University.

Some 60 persons, 15 and older, are expected to compete in swimming, track dashes, softball throw, shotput, distance kick, standing long jump, electric wheelchair obstacle course, weightlifting, chin-ups and electric wheelchair races.

'Huskie Muskie' Contest Slated

FINDLAY, Ohio (AP) — The seventh annual Huskie Muskie Fishing Contest is scheduled for Aug. 13 and 14 at Pymatuning Lake in northeastern Ohio.

The contest is sponsored by the Ohio Huskie Muskie Club. Entry blanks are available from club members, sporting goods stores, marinas and bait and tackle shops. There is a $5 entry fee.

Nuptials Planned

GRACE (BETH) BEAVERS

Mr. and Mrs. Arnold J. Beavers, 13142 Carson Road, Orient, are announcing the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter Grace, to Mr. Robert Carl Severs Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Carl Severs Sr., Springfield.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Westfall High School and a communications major at Ohio State University; she is employed by Lazarus, Columbus.

Mr. Severs is a graduate of Northwestern High School, Springfield, and is a agriculture economics major at Ohio State University; he is presently employed by Kal Kan Foods.

The wedding will be an event of September 10 at the Southwest Church of the Nazarene.

OSU Trustees Approve Bill

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio State University trustees approved Friday a revised $382 million budget for the 1977-78 fiscal year.

Officials said the package reflects a $2 million reduction in expenditures as a result of deletions made by the legislature from the appropriations bill enacted June 20 and signed by Gov. James A. Rhodes the next day.

In other business, the board decided it would not be feasible for it to make moral judgments as to the appropriateness of policies of firms with which it makes investments from university endowment funds.

The board was responding to questions raised recently by two student groups about investments made in American corporations doing business in South Africa.

A statement adopted by the board said it felt it could not possibly use as a prime investment criterion a corporation's international and domestic trade arrangements and the fairness of the policies of each foreign nation in which it does business.

Work Starts On
Grid Hall Of Fame

KINGS MILLS, Ohio (AP) — Construction on the new National Football Foundation Hall of Fame building began this week at the Kings Island Family Entertainment Center.

The building, which will honor college football's greatest players and coaches, is expected to open in June, 1978, said John H. Wyant, the hall's general manager.

Wyant said an educational format utilizing clinics, seminars, audio visual displays, computers and a research library will characterize the hall of fame.

Apollo I Rockets

To Scioto Victory

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Apollo I rocketed into the lead in the stretch to record a 3/4-length victory in the featured race at Scioto Downs Friday night.

The winner, cruising the mile in 2:00 1-5, returned $8.40, $4.60 and $2.80. Sugar Waif paid $9.40 and $4.60 for second and Mary Nel, $2.80 for show.

The 3-7 daily double combination of Proud N Steady and Specile Key was worth $23.40. The 10-7-2 trifecta paid $1,227.

A crowd of 7,099 wagered $457,779.

Center fielder Lyman Bostock of Minnesota had a record 17 putouts in a double-header against Boston on May 25, 1977.

Brown's Top
Rookie Set
For Practice

KENT, Ohio (AP) — The Cleveland Browns' top rookie prospect, linebacker Robert Jackson, says he's satisfied with his five-year contract and glad that "I can finally concentrate on football."

The Texas A&M defensive stalwart reported to the Browns' rookie camp at Kent State University Thursday night, a few hours after his agent, Randy Hendricks of Houston, worked out terms of the agreement.

Terms were not disclosed, but there were reported to be several incentive clauses, and Jackson said he plans to play well enough to cash in on the performance bonuses.

"I think I can play well in this league or any other," said the 6-foot-1, 228-pounder. "The incentive clause will get that little extra out of me. I know it will have to be well-earned." Jackson was a surprise selection but the Browns in the first round of the National Football League college draft.

The Browns platooned eight-year veteran Bob Babich and promising third-year man, Dick Ambrose, at middle linebacker in 1976.

"In a way, I was surprised that Cleveland picked me. The competition here will be tough," Jackson said. He said he had talked to Browns' Coach Forrest Gregg at the Senior Bowl last year, "and he said the Browns were interested in me."

Gregg, who coached the North squad to victory in the annual classic, got an opposition view of the defensive work of Jackson, who lived up to his nickname "Stonewall," in the Senior Bowl.

However, Jackson admits he must perform better than he did at Friday morning's workout if he expects to establish himself as the main cog in the Brown defense.

New Pros
Outshine Lady
Golf Veterans

CHASKA, Minn. (AP)—Two of the newer faces on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour are outshining the veterans at the midway point of the women's U.S. Open Tournament.

Hollis Stacy, a four-year pro with just one tour victory, and 20-year-old Nancy Lopez, a raw rookie debuting at the Open on the 6,313-yard Hazeltine National Golf Club, are 1-2 after the first two rounds. Both are confident they can win the prestigious event.

"I've never led before in a 72-hole tournament, but I like being out in front," said Miss Stacy, whose one-under 143 gives her a two-stroke advantage over Lopez going into today's nationally-televised third round.

"The pressure is good for me—it makes me concentrate," continued the 23-year Georgian, who is 10th on this year's LPGA winnings list.

Stacy built a five-stroke cushion at the turn Friday, but staggered home with bogeys on three of the last four holes.

"It was just wild," she explained in a wispy southern accent. "I wasn't happy with the way I hit the ball, but I scrambled well."

Miss Lopez, who was convinced by her manager and parents to begin her pro career at the open, capitalized on her powerful game on the fairways to push into a challenging position.

The Roswell, N.M., tour rookie, who made a charge at the open title as an amateur two years ago, fired a 71 Friday for a two-round 145, one stroke ahead of defending champion JoAnne Carner.

"I guess I haven't realized yet that I'm playing golf for a living now," said Miss Lopez. "I haven't really gotten used to it yet, but I came here because some people convinced me I could win."

Mrs. Carner is alone at 146, followed by Australian Jan Stephenson at 147.

Pam Higgins, Pat Bradley, Debbie Austin, Amy Alcott and Cathy Mant are all at 149 while Kathy Whitworth, Jane Blalock and Peggy Conley are at 150. Miss Conley, also a rookie, has won just $2,697.52 in 15 tournaments this season.

Clippers Game
Starting Earlier
On Monday

Teams in the Circleville Youth Baseball league have a choice in departing times for the Clippers game Monday. The game has been changed to a twilight double header, and the first game begins at 6:30 p.m.

President Larry Pontius said those managers who prefer to change plans and see both games should leave at 5 p.m. from the park. It is up to the managers to contact other drivers and team members.

Because job conflicts may prevent managers from leaving at an early hour, some teams may have to wait until the originally planned 6 p.m. departing time to leave for Columbus. Team members should have some communication with the manager over the weekend to straighten out the situation.

Circleville Youth baseball teams should wear their uniform tops to the Clippers game with Richmond.

It is a double header to make up a rained out game earlier in the season. Monday is Hank Aaron Night at the stadium.

MacFaddens
Win Tourney

Mr. and Mrs. Dean MacFadden won low gross honors at the Pickaway Country Club's three-club tournament.

The Paul Porters and the Dick Alkires tied for second low gross.

Low net went to Brad Schneider and Ruth Elliott, while the team of Dallas Elliott and Katie Schneider and the team of Harold Binkley and Art Holveck tied for second low net.

Brown's Top Rookie Set For Practice

KENT, Ohio (AP) — The Cleveland Browns' top rookie prospect, linebacker Robert Jackson, says he's satisfied with his five-year contract and glad that "I can finally concentrate on football."

The Texas A&M defensive stalwart reported to the Browns' rookie camp at Kent State University Thursday night, a few hours after his agent, Randy Hendricks of Houston, worked out terms of the agreement.

Terms were not disclosed, but there were reported to be several incentive clauses, and Jackson said he plans to play well enough to cash in on the performance bonuses.

"I think I can play well in this league or any other," said the 6-foot-1, 228-pounder. "The incentive clause will get that little extra out of me. I know it will have to be well-earned." Jackson was a surprise selection but the Browns in the first round of the National Football League college draft.

The Browns platooned eight-year veteran Bob Babich and promising third-year man, Dick Ambrose, at middle linebacker in 1976.

"In a way, I was surprised that Cleveland picked me. The competition here will be tough," Jackson said. He said he had talked to Browns' Coach Forrest Gregg at the Senior Bowl last year, "and he said the Browns were interested in me."

Gregg, who coached the North squad to victory in the annual classic, got an opposition view of the defensive work of Jackson, who lived up to his nickname "Stonewall," in the Senior Bowl.

However, Jackson admits he must perform better than he did at Friday morning's workout if he expects to establish himself as the main cog in the Brown defense.

New Pros Outshine Lady Golf Veterans

CHASKA, Minn. (AP)—Two of the newer faces on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour are outshining the veterans at the midway point of the women's U.S. Open Tournament.

Hollis Stacy, a four-year pro with just one tour victory, and 20-year-old Nancy Lopez, a raw rookie debuting at the Open on the 6,313-yard Hazeltine National Golf Club, are 1-2 after the first two rounds. Both are confident they can win the prestigious event.

"I've never led before in a 72-hole tournament, but I like being out in front," said Miss Stacy, whose one-under 143 gives her a two-stroke advantage over Lopez going into today's nationally-televised third round.

"The pressure is good for me—it makes me concentrate," continued the 23-year Georgian, who is 10th on this year's LPGA winnings list.

Stacy built a five-stroke cushion at the turn Friday, but staggered home with bogeys on three of the last four holes.

"It was just wild," she explained in a wispy southern accent. "I wasn't happy with the way I hit the ball, but I scrambled well."

Miss Lopez, who was convinced by her manager and parents to begin her pro career at the open, capitalized on her powerful game on the fairways to push into a challenging position.

The Roswell, N.M., tour rookie, who made a charge at the open title as an amateur two years ago, fired a 71 Friday for a two-round 145, one stroke ahead of defending champion JoAnne Carner.

"I guess I haven't realized yet that I'm playing golf for a living now," said Miss Lopez. "I haven't really gotten used to it yet, but I came here because some people convinced me I could win."

Mrs. Carner is alone at 146, followed by Australian Jan Stephenson at 147.

Pam Higgins, Pat Bradley, Debbie Austin, Amy Alcott and Cathy Mant are all at 149 while Kathy Whitworth, Jane Blalock and Peggy Conley are at 150. Miss Conley, also a rookie, has won just $2,697.52 in 15 tournaments this season.

Clippers Game Starting Earlier On Monday

Teams in the Circleville Youth Baseball league have a choice in departing times for the Clippers game Monday. The game has been changed to a twilight double header, and the first game begins at 6:30 p.m.

President Larry Pontius said those managers who prefer to change plans and see both games should leave at 5 p.m. from the park. It is up to the managers to contact other drivers and team members.

Because job conflicts may prevent managers from leaving at an early hour, some teams may have to wait until the originally planned 6 p.m. departing time to leave for Columbus. Team members should have some communication with the manager over the weekend to straighten out the situation.

Circleville Youth baseball teams should wear their uniform tops to the Clippers game with Richmond.

It is a double header to make up a rained out game earlier in the season. Monday is Hank Aaron Night at the stadium.

Your Horoscope
By FRANCIS DRAKE

What kind of day will tomorrow be? To find out what the stars say, read the forecast given for your birth Sign.

FOR SUNDAY

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20): Your intuition and self-reliance stimulated now. And both will be needed if you are to solve some possible "tricky" situations. Don't become anxious, however.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21): Stellar aspects indicate a day of successful moves and plans, but all will require know-how, diligence and painstaking care. Don't launch into uncharted seas.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): Mixed influences. Day calls for your stamina, stick-to-itiveness, good will and ability to help yourself and others out of undesirable situations.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23): No matter what changes are made in your routine, even in your environment, you can make quick adjustments, should get along well and even make notable improvements.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): You can expect a pleasant day, with associates full of good will and congeniality. Day especially favors travel and meeting interesting people.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): You should find hobbies and creative endeavors absorbing and rewarding. And, like Leo, you may meet new people who prove highly stimulating.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): Your intuition and unusually good judgment will be a boon in the tight spots now. Give special care to family obligations.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22): You may have to make some concessions in a family matter, but the end results will be very worthwhile. Expect some good news in the p.m.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): False statements COULD mislead but, under day's capital influences, you should be able to discriminate well. Just be alert.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): A day for some reevaluation. Dress up an old idea, give an inert interest new life, investigate new avenues to progress. Projects close to your heart can be furthered notably with the right push.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Some situations await your incisiveness and knack for managing people. You may have to do some persuading, but you are good at this.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): You may find it difficult to get things done in the way you prefer. Also, you may run into unexpected snags. Take all in stride and avoid argument. Things will right themselves.

YOU BORN TODAY are a Cancer-Leo cuspal (one born at the change of Signs) and, as such, are endowed with some of the finest traits of both. Your potentials for happiness and success are so numerous and varied that you should leave no stone unturned to develop your finest and have a truly rewarding life. Fields in which you could make the greatest success: literature, music, science, banking, medicine or the stage.

Birthdate of: Alexandre Dumas, French author; Amelia M. Earhart, renowned American aviatix.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

What kind of day will tomorrow be? To find out what the stars say, read the forecast given for your birth sign.

FOR SUNDAY
ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20): Your intuition and self-reliance stimulated now. And both will be needed if you are to solve some possible "tricky" situations. Don't become anxious, however.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21): Stellar aspects indicate a day of successful moves and plans, but all will require know-how, diligence and painstaking care. Don't launch into uncharted seas.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): Mixed influences. Day calls for your stamina, stick-to-itiveness, good will and ability to help yourself and others out of undesirable situations.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23): No matter what changes are made in your routine, even in your environment, you can make quick adjustments, should get along well and even make notable improvements.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): You can expect a pleasant day, with associates full of good will and congeniality. Day especially favors travel and meeting interesting people.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): You should find hobbies and creative endeavors absorbing and rewarding. And, like Leo, you may meet new people who prove highly stimulating.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): Your intuition and unusually good judgment will be a boon in the tight spots now. Give special care to family obligations.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 23): You may have to make some concessions in a family matter, but the end results will be very worthwhile. Expect some good news in the p.m.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): False statements COULD mislead but, under day's capital influences, you should be able to discriminate well. Just be alert.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): A day for some reevaluation. Dress up an old idea, give an inert interest new life, investigate new avenues to progress. Projects close to your heart can be furthered notably with the right push.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Some situations await your incisiveness and knack for managing people. You may have to do some persuading, but you are good at this.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): You may find it difficult to get things done in the way you prefer. Also, you may run into unexpected snags. Take all in stride and avoid argument. Things will right themselves.

YOU BORN TODAY are a Cancer-Leo couple (one born at the change of Signs) and, as such, are endowed with some of the finest traits of both. Your potentials for happiness and success are so numerous and varied that you should leave no stone unturned to develop your finest and have a truly rewarding life. Fields in which you could make the greatest success: literature, music, science, banking, medicine or the stage. Birthdate of: Alexandre Dumas, French author; Amelia E. Earhart, renowned American aviatrix.

People . . .

after drinking a few beers at a baseball game and how that same person might act after drinking a few beers at home alone.

5. Social Attitudes. How the society we live in feels about the drug we are using has an important impact on how we use it and what we use it for.

6. Integrity. Is the drug really what we think it is? If we mistakenly take one drug expecting to feel the effects of another drug we may be in for the surprise of our lives.

It is all of these things together that determine how much "power" a drug has.

We live in a drug-oriented society. There are more than 120,000 drugs on the market. All can be used, all can be misused. Two months ago a woman actually died from drinking too much water. It is obvious that anything can be abused. So the question is not should we or shouldn't we use this, that or any drug. The question is how do we use drugs. We each have to answer this for ourselves. Once we answer that question everything else falls into place.

We are not going to get rid of drugs. They have always been here and will continue to be here. If anything the future will bring us more drugs, and as long as there are drugs people will use them.

I believe that once we as a society realize that drugs do not have strange, mystical powers over us and that they are limited in what they can do for us compared to what we, the real source of our power, can do for ourselves, misuse or abuse will cease to be a problem.

Thanks for sticking with me through these articles. I hope you enjoyed them. Next week — the essay questions.

Two People Injured In Accident

Two people were injured in a 2:51 p.m. Friday accident at the intersection of Route 56 and Route 104. The injuries suffered by Ray and Mabel Elkins, Myra, West Virginia, were minor according to Pickaway County Deputy Sheriff Lowell Ferguson.

They were treated by the Circleville Emergency Medical Team and by personnel at Berger Hospital.

According to Deputy Ferguson, Mrs. Elkins, 72, was driving west on Route 56 and failed to stop at the intersection. Her car was hit by a semi truck driven north on Route 104 by Clarence A. Miller, 59, Route 3, Oak Hill.

Mrs. Elkins was charged with failing to yield the right of way from a stop sign.

—Revises fees and filing requirements in county clerks' offices for certain kinds of real estate titles. Effective Oct. 21.

Unemployment Rate In Ohio Climbing High

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio's unemployment rate climbed by .4 per cent from 5.9 to 6.3 per cent, the Bureau Employment services reported Friday, attributing the jump to students seeking summer jobs and new graduates looking for permanent work.

Meanwhile the bureau reports Ohio workers made more than $4 billion more in 1976 than in the previous year.

The bureau reported that a total of more $42 billion was paid to workers covered by the state unemployment compensation law and that the figure was an 11.1 per cent increase over 1975.

Manufacturing jobs accounted for the largest portion of total wages, adding $18 billion to the economy. The wholesale and retail trades were second with $7.3 billion.

Meanwhile the bureau reported that there were .9 per cent more jobs in the state in June than in May. The June total of jobs was 4.552 million.

The average weekly salary of factory workers broke the record set in May and hit a new high of $286.52 up by $5.50.

The bureau reports that the unemployment figures for June of this year, while up from a month ago, are down by 1.6 per cent from the 7.9 per cent of the labor force that was out of work in June 1976.

People . . .

after drinking a few beers at a baseball game and how that same person might act after drinking a few beers at home alone.

5. Social Attitudes. How the society we live in feels about the drug we are using has an important impact on how we use it and what we use it for.

6. Integrity. Is the drug really what we think it is? If we mistakenly take one drug expecting to feel the effects of another drug we may be in for the surprise of our lives.

It is all of these things together that determine how much "power" a drug has.

We live in a drug-oriented society. There are more than 120,000 drugs on the market. All can be used, all can be misused. Two months ago a woman actually died from drinking too much water. It is obvious that anything can be abused. So the question is not should we or shouldn't we use this, that or any drug. The question is how do we use drugs. We each have to answer this for ourselves. Once we answer that question everything else falls into place.

We are not going to get rid of drugs. They have always been here and will continue to be here. If anything the future will bring us more drugs, and as long as there are drugs people will use them.

I believe that once we as a society realize that drugs do not have strange, mystical powers over us and that they are limited in what they can do for us compared to what we, the real source of our power, can do for ourselves, misuse or abuse will cease to be a problem.

Thanks for sticking with me through these articles. I hope you enjoyed them. Next week — the essay questions.

Two People Injured In Accident

Two people were injured in a 2:51 p.m. Friday accident at the intersection of Route 56 and Route 104. The injuries suffered by Ray and Mabel Elkins, Myra, West Virginia, were minor according to Pickaway County Deputy Sheriff Lowell Ferguson.

They were treated by the Circleville Emergency Medical Team and by personnel at Berger Hospital.

According to Deputy Ferguson, Mrs. Elkins, 72, was driving west on Route 56 and failed to stop at the intersection. Her car was hit by a semi truck driven north on Route 104 by Clarence A. Miller, 59, Route 3, Oak Hill.

Mrs. Elkins was charged with failing to yield the right of way from a stop sign.

Unemployment Rate In Ohio Climbing High

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio's unemployment rate climbed by .4 per cent from 5.9 to 6.3 per cent, the Bureau of Employment services reported Friday, attributing the jump to students seeking summer jobs and new graduates looking for permanent work.

Meanwhile the bureau reports Ohio workers made more than $4 billion more in 1976 than in the previous year.

The bureau reported that a total of more $42 billion was paid to workers covered by the state unemployment compensation law and that the figure was an 11.1 per cent increase over 1975.

Manufacturing jobs accounted for the largest portion of total wages, adding $18 billion to the economy. The wholesale and retail trades were second with $7.3 billion.

Meanwhile the bureau reported that there were .9 per cent more jobs in the state in June than in May. The June total of jobs was 4.552 million.

The average weekly salary of factory workers broke the record set in May and hit a new high of $286.52 up by $5.50.

The bureau reports that the unemployment figures for June of this year, while up from a month ago, are down by 1.6 per cent from the 7.9 per cent of the labor force that was out of work in June 1976.

Tony Orlando Calls It Quits

BOSTON (AP) — Pop singer Tony Orlando stunned a summer concert audience when he called it quits with show business for the time being.

Frank Lieberman, Orlando's publicity manager, said the popular singer would leave the entertainment circuit after his performance tonight at the South Shore Music Circus in Cohasset, Mass., and would retire immediately if concert contracts for a week in Warwick, R.I., could be canceled.

Lieberman said Orlando told the audience Friday evening: "I have a talent that people have enjoyed for 16 years, and I'm not going to do what my friend Freddie Prinze did. People enjoy having me sing; but the difference now is it will be on a one-to-one basis."

Actor Prinze's death last spring was ruled a suicide.

Before his second show of the evening, Orlando said: "I am retiring to devote more time to my family and the handicapped and mentally retarded."

His partners, cousins Telma Hopkins and Joyce Wilson Brown, known as "Dawn," were described as being "in a state of shock," by the theater's producer, Ron Rawson.

Governor Brown Thanked By Helen

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Singer Helen Reddy attended her first state Parks and Recreation Commission meeting and thanked Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. for giving her a chance "to put my time and energy where my mouth is."

The bureaucrat-entertainer hoppedscotched from Las Vegas to Los Angeles to San Francisco for her first commission session on Friday.

Ms. Reddy had actively campaigned for Brown. He announced her appointment to the Parks and Recreation Commission on July 13 for a term that ends in 1981.
